

MEET KARL

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Success is not about taking big leaps and making big decisions it's about taking small steps and making smart choices.

I started my cloud journey with a background in electronics engineering and now I am a Salesforce manager and one of the pioneers of our ever growing Salesforce team.

With the help of bootcamp training programs and mentorship here in Accenture, I was able to acquire my knowledge and skills in Salesforce technology and gain my first Salesforce certification.

When I began leading our Salesforce training and accommodating interns from Accenture internship program, I discovered my passion for building people's skills these experiences are what landed me my role in capability building.

Some people might find tech intimidating, but it's really about finding the right tech for you. With my role here in Accenture, I am able to help people find the right tech for them through our internship and bootcamp training. They discover their potential, find the right career path, and progress in their fields.

And seeing them become subject matter experts, Salesforce full stop developers, functional consultants or Devops engineers only motivate me to continue doing what I do.

At Accenture, our goal is to provide a multitude of learning opportunities like Tech explore - an internship program, so that we can have more innovators to drive #TechForChange.

I am Karl and I'm a Salesforce Manager here at Accenture.
