

HOW ACCENTURE WORKS ACROSS CULTURES

Video Transcript

Milan, Geneva, Lausanne, Mumbai, Bangalore, California, Texas, Berlin, France, Delhi, Sydney Australia and Singapore.

Working in all these places has expanded our life vocabulary.

With all of us from different countries coming with different backgrounds we're able to put our different ways of thinking to deliver an innovative solution for our clients.

Working in different countries has pushed me outside of my comfort zone and has forced me to think in new ways.

One of the reasons why I picked Accenture is because of this kind of global network. The idea of not trying to create one single culture in the company, but just trying to preserve all of the different cultures within.

The kaleidoscope of different colors, different views, different perspectives it has definitely broadened my mind.

When we're working for multinational clients, our teams reflect that.

Accenture being a global company with its footprint across many countries in the world we also have to be global when we deliver for our clients.

When you have diverse teams you just come up with bigger and bolder ideas. Because you just have different perspectives on things and you can actually create new things with these different perspectives.
